GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, May 7.-It was a day of wild and irregular price fluctuations in the wheat pit, with trading also erratic, business during the first half of the session being rather limited, while extreme activity marked the final hour. One notable feature was the relative strength of the distant futures, particularly the December option, which closed at a net gain for the day of 3%c, while the May and July deliveries showed gains of only %c each. Trading today centered around the government crop report, and as it was not made public until noon, Chicago time, the period prior to that hour was lacking in features with the exception of a severe slump in the price of the July delivery just before the appearance of the government statistics. The market opened weak with prices a shade higher to be lower compared with the previous close, the heaviness at the start being chiefly due to an unexpected decline of %d to 1½d at Liverpool. Prices, however, quickly advanced on an active demand for the deferred futures, based mainly on the continued absence of rain in Kansas and on the official forecast of small likelihood for showers in that state today or tomorrow. Toward the middle of the day, the July delivery slumped violently, owing to general selling, much of which was of a stop-loss character, prompted, to a large extent, by a two-cent break in corn. July dropped to 113% after having sold at 117% earlier in the day. The more deferred futures declined more than 2c from the previous high point of the session, selling off to 164% and 163% for September and December respectively.

Following the publication of the government report. July advanced again to 167%. According to the official statistics, the condition of winter wheat during April appreciated less than 1 per cent, which was a much smaller improvement than had been anticipated.

The report also showed a reduction of 7.2 per cent of the total acreage seeded last fall. Sentiment continued extremely bullish the remainder of the day, and the market closed strong with July at 117% (117%: September at 1681%(165%, and December at 167%, and 129 and closed at the top.

Corn advanced to new high records for the season early in the oay, May selling feature was the relative strength of the distant futures, particularly the Decem-

Corn advanced to new high records for

Corn advanced to new high records for the season early in the day, May selling up to 73%c and July to 79%c. The upturn brought out liberal realizing sales, which resulted in a sharp reaction, May dropping to 73%c and July to 68%c. The market closed about steady, although prices were 14c to 5%6%c below yesterday's final figures, May being at 72%c and July at 199%c.

Oats also scored new high record marks early in the session, when May sold at 59c and July at 52½c. The market closed steady, with prices unchanged to ½c lower, compared with the previous close. Final figures on May were at 53½c and on July 5154651½c.

Provisions were easy early in the day, but later became quite strong. Prices at the close were 2½65c to 12½c higher than yesterday's close.
